The Future of Security Services

At Securitas USA, we are always looking for ways to match each client's unique security needs with the best solution for both your business and your budget. As an industry leader, we've dedicated ourselves to using our resources and experience to create an array of security alternatives.

The security industry continues to be challenged by the seemingly opposing dynamics of increasing the security of people and property while simultaneously maintaining cost control. At the same time, our clients are under constant pressure of their own to operate as efficiently as possible as they look to implement cost-control/reduction initiatives. Securitas USA's goal is to drive efficiencies within the security programs of our clients without compromising our capabilities to meet their security requirements.

Recent business trends point toward the continued, long-term escalation of labor costs. Costs such as the newly implemented Affordable Care Act (ACA), minimum wage requirements, and government taxes are not abating and will increase. These factors will significantly impact labor-intensive industries such as security services, and Securitas USA is not immune.

Our goal as a security provider is to employ the tools and technology to make each officer more effective. As a global industry leader, we have firsthand experience with worldwide security trends and have developed protocols for a variety of scenarios. A company of our size offers a comprehensive approach – we can provide not just the officer, not just the technology, but a complete and flexible security plan to handle all of your needs.

Remote Guarding

Advances in camera, sensory and access control technology – along with increased bandwidth and communication tools – have radically changed how we can manage many key security duties.

This is already standard practice for many of our global clients – a manufacturing plant in Buffalo can be monitored by a highly-trained officer at the headquarters in Baltimore, who can dispatch local responders with the touch of a button.

Tried and tested technology means an off-site officer can conduct a full video-tour of a facility, make security announcements and manage access controls for employees and visitors. The same officer can complete logs and file reports traditionally performed on-site.

While Remote Guarding may seem like an obvious solution for low-activity posts, advances in technology make it a viable option for every account. We can utilize existing cameras, update an existing system, or install new cameras as part of our turn-key solution.

Securitas USA offers the following Remote Guarding services:

- Alarm Verification
- Remote Employee Escort
- Remote Entry/Exit Management
- Remote Patrol
- Remote Perimeter Protection

Mobile Guarding

In situations that require an on-site presence for at least some key tasks, Mobile Guarding may be an effective answer.

Typically, a Mobile officer will check in on the facility a predetermined number of times — at random intervals — and be in the vicinity to respond. All inspection results are reported online and can be accessed by our clients in real-time.

While Mobile Guarding can fit a wide variety of situations, it is the ideal answer for a number of specific needs:

- Monitoring factory equipment, warehouses, or other facilities that may need nightly inspection.
- Responding to alarms – using Mobile Guarding as a first response eliminates false-alarm costs from local law enforcement.
- Providing relief and short-term coverage for businesses that employ a single individual overnight.
- Escorting employees at shift changes.
- Providing systematic and even synchronized coverage for accounts with multiple locations – whether miles apart or across the country.
- Partnering with Remote Guarding to provide a visible presence during low-activity posts.

Mobile Guarding allows clients on even the tightest budget to fully leverage Securitas USA's vast resources and industry knowledge. Mobile clients have access to the same professional officers, cutting edge technology and dedicated customer service they've come to expect, while only having to pay for the services they actually utilize.

Technology Solutions

A poorly designed or malfunctioning security system can leave a facility vulnerable to losses and liability. Most of the time a few small, but well thought-out adjustments to a security program can make all of the difference, without breaking the budget.

We aren't limited by old silos, where security officers are separate from technology. When we design a security plan we bring all of the industry-leading security tools and processes to the discussion. Whether you need a customized system or a few minor adjustments, Securitas USA is a single source for creating and managing a fully integrated security program.

The goal isn't to rebuild your physical security program; it's to help provide a more efficient program, fill in the gaps and make better use of the tools available.

We can provide:

- SecuritasSentry: a wireless, battery-powered motion sensor and camera system that generates a 10-second video clip when triggered by any motion.
- Video Security Solutions: Utilize analog or IP cameras to increase surveillance or visual coverage to a facility.
- System design, installation and maintenance: Securitas Engineers are the single point of contact for your service contract in order to maintain the optimum performance for your camera system.

Integrated Guarding

Integrated Guarding combines all three of Securitas USA's Guarding Services – On-site, Remote, and Mobile – along with technology solutions to provide a comprehensive, cutting edge security alternative.

Securitas USA officers perform vital functions that rely on friendly, consistent human interaction but also have a wealth of resources on hand to cover core duties in non-traditional ways.

After a full operational analysis, a Securitas USA branch manager will develop custom-tailored alternatives to cover your unique security needs.

For example:

- A busy manufacturing plant may need on-site officers to handle the front gate while the perimeter is monitored by remote guarding.
- A large warehouse facility with low activity evening shifts may utilize a camera system that alerts a mobile patrol team to respond to security issues.

No matter your concerns or budget,
Integrated Guarding has a solution for you.

Securitas USA is not only a knowledge leader in security but the nation's leading security provider. As a Securitas USA client, all of our resources are at your service. At the first sign of trouble, we will respond as quickly and smartly as possible to help keep your employees, property and facilities safe. We don't just sound an alarm – we answer the threat.
